NOTES:

(1) For special conditions on development of property in R-3 that directly abuts R-1, see §325-9.

(2) No new construction of a primary structure in the R-3aa zone shall contain a footprint that is larger than 120% of the average footprint of the existing buildings along the entire block front in which the building is located. If one or more such surrounding buildings have been demolished, then the calculation for maximum building footprint shall use the footprint of the primary structure that most recently stood on any lot where a demolition had occurred.

(3) See §325-8(B)(1).

(4) For the first occupant; +500 sf for each additional occupant. (Could remove notes 1 - 6, if a single standard is created for these uses.)

(5) For the first occupant in each dwelling unit; +400 sf for each additional occupant in each dwelling unit.

(6) For the first occupant in each dwelling unit; +300 sf for each additional occupant in each dwelling unit; +500 sf for each additional occupant in each dwelling unit in excess of five occupants.

(7) For the first 1-3 units; +750 sf for each additional unit; +500 sf per room let for profit.

(8) For the first 1-3 units; +500 sf for each additional unit; +300 sf per room let for profit.

(9) For the first 1-3 units; +1,500 sf for each additional unit.

(10) See §325-16.

(11) The first number refers to the maximum building stories allowed, the second number refers to the minimum building stories required.

(12) The first number applies to one-family detached dwellings, one-family detached zero lot line dwellings, and other uses; the second number applies to one-family semi-detached dwelling and two-family dwellings; and the third number applies to one-family attached dwellings.

(13) 50% of the developable lot area, after the required setbacks have been calculated, must be retained as green space.

(14) The first number applies to one-family detached dwellings, one-family semi-detached dwellings (unattached sides only), one-family attached dwelling (unattached sides only), two-family dwellings, and other uses; the second number applies to one-family detached zero lot line dwellings.

(15) The first number applies to one-family detached zero lot line dwellings and one-family semi-detached dwellings with attached sides; the second number applies to one-family detached dwellings, two-family dwellings, and other uses; and the third number applies to one-family detached zero-lot line dwellings on the side abutting a non-zero lot line building or lot.
